Law Firms to Learn at New Location

Chagrin Falls, OH (August 24, 2005) – Cleveland area law firms will have a new location to learn about the latest in legal technology in Chagrin Falls, OH. On September 1, 2005, Accellis Technology Group, a legal software support and consulting company, will open the doors to a new training facility where lawyers will discover the latest in legal technology solutions. The increasing demand for legal software training prompted Accellis to nearly double its office size.

Accellis is installing new computers and software in an office directly across from its main office. This new expansion will allow the company to serve clients in a private classroom setting. Accellis will have the capacity to train up to 12 people simultaneously about effectively using legal software like TimeMatters, PracticeMaster, CaseMap, Amicus, and much more.

Joe Marquette, President and founder of Accellis, is anticipating an increase in attendance at the company's training classes. "The training classes are designed to improve efficiency and cut the costs of managing a productive law firm. Our clients will receive hands-on training at our centrally located facility. All of our technicians and consultants will be next door if they need any other services or would like to discuss additional technology options," said Marquette. Accellis Technology Group will offer training classes focusing on different legal software every month.

Considering lawyers' busy schedules, Accellis purchased a mix of laptop and desktop computers for the training center. "We anticipate a great need for our new training center, but we also want to keep the flexibility we've always offered our busy clients. If they can't make it to the training center, we can always bring the training to their offices with our laptops," said Marquette.

Accellis is a service and consulting firm delivering modern practice management, time and billing, litigation support, document management and networking solutions to legal and financial services companies throughout Northeast Ohio and across the country. Since 2003, Accellis has been assisting law firms, sole practitioners, in-house counsels and other legal organizations manage their firms effectively.
